Susan,

Apologies for the delay in getting back to you on this one. Here is the response from the Foundation to your question:

The original School's name was "School of Architecture and Allied Arts"; recently the School's name has been changed to "College of Design". The College of Design has seven departments including the Department of Architecture, Department of Art and the Department of the History of Art and Architecture. Therefore, these three departments are under the umbrella of one school which emphasizes art and architecture.

Note that the original purpose of the Fund shall be to provide the means of purchasing photographs and books on the history of architecture for the use of the Department of Art History at the University of Oregon (emphasis added.) So, the funds would remain in the same Department and only excess funds may be used to provide broader research endeavors of that Department.

Thanks very much,
Laurie

Laurie,

Sorry for the delay in getting back to you on this fund.

I'm ok with broadening the purposes to enable better use of the funds, but I question is the research support should be related to architecture. Can you explain why the proposal is art history as opposed to architecture?
